DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. The cited claim details a method of processing HTML elements using objects by performing various steps. The steps can all be performed by software and therefore, the claims are non-statutory as defined in M.P.E.P. 2106.

Double Patenting

2. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

3. Claim 1 is rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claim 1 of U.S. Patent No. 6,651,108. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the transmitting of a message to the instance to perform an operation would meet the patented step of transmitting a "create" message to the instance to dynamically generate HTML statements.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over DODGE (U.S. Patent 5,655,130).

As to claim 1, DODGE teaches a method of processing mark-up language elements (SGML) using objects (objects / classes), comprising the steps of: defining object classes for each of the mark-up language elements (col. 4, lines 7-16); creating an HTML template (DTD), the HTML template having a statement (rules) that defines one of the mark-up language elements (via the document type definition which comprises a set of rules which define the relationship between data elements in an SGML source file) (col. 5, lines 21-23; col. 10, lines 1-15; col. 9, lines 41-45); identifying the object class associated with the one of the mark-up language elements (col. 4, lines 6-16); and creating a document based on the object class (col. 4, lines 21-29; col. 3, lines 37-46). DODGE also teaches the use of object orientation with SGML in order to reuse programming code objects (col. 3, lines 27-36) and creating a document based on object classes (col. 4, lines 21-29; col. 3, lines 37-46). It would be obvious to one skilled in the art at the time of the invention that a class instantiates into an object and has data and methods that can be invoked and therefore it would be obvious that the data and methods of the associated instantiated object classes of the data elements are invoked in order to create a document. See also column 7, lines 24-30, col. 18, lines 32-58 and col. 19, lines 1-10. However, DODGE does not teach that the mark-up language is HTML. Official Notice is taken in that it is well known in the art that HTML is a variation of SGML and therefore would be obvious to one skilled in the art at the time of the invention to use the teachings of DODGE with the well known mark-up language of HTML in order to re-use objects in forming HTML documents.
